Amanda Chen, DDS / Orthodontic Relapse and Retention

The Hollywood movie tagline “Happily Ever After” does not seem to apply to orthodontic treatment. Many occlusal changes after orthodontic treatment can occur within the first few months to years after as a part of physiologic changes of aging. A short discussion of common presentation of relapse, causes of relapse, recommended retention protocol will be presented.

Jeffrey Delgadillo, DDS / Third Molars: What You Need to Know

Do you ever find yourself wondering why Oral Surgeons want all wisdom teeth out? We will discuss clinically significant evaluation, diagnosis, treatment planning, and risk stratification surrounding third molars. The goal is understanding how to work as a team to avoid unnecessary complications.

Estella Kim, DDS / Integrating In-office Sedation and General Anesthesia

What now? When the patient is too anxious or uncooperative to complete treatment, what options are available? We will discuss the different levels of anesthesia available, patient selection and criteria, and what additional equipment or certifications an office needs to provide general anesthesia in-office.

Richard Knight, DDS, MS / The Basics of Frenectomies in Children

The tongue and lips play an intricate role in nursing/eating, speech, breathing, and oral cleansing. When these processes are lacking in some way, dental professionals must consider the possibility that the mobility of oral structures could be hindered. This short talk will give you the confidence to recognize a lip or tongue tie, and teach you how to proceed with treatment to maximize success.
